Curator Galit Semel presents two solo shows at the Artists' Residency, Herzliya ("Mishkan Omanim").

David Neeman's "Layouts for Galactic Monuments" are images of a futuristic existential situations waiting to happen. Constructive, sleek aerodynamic forms float through space as monuments commemorating structural milestones in Man's long search for an alternative habitat. The forms, which will be made of various types of metals, convey the collective power of a tangible human capacity of coming together in search of a new ideal land suitable for human existence. The dynamism reflecting the ability for fast adaptation to a new environment is evident in these monuments' shapes and in the connection between the object to the space and to its means of flight.

Ran Slavin's "Tender Prey/Organic Urbanic" is a video work in which one's gaze passes through complex aerial satellite video photography of Tel Aviv. These fantastic videos are conceived through kaleidoscopic examinations to produce an urban mesh of robotic ornamentations of a future city built from moving architectural patterns.
